

US Equity Ex-Dividend ETF

XDIV replicates the returns of SPY less the current value of expected dividends.

KEY FEATURES

WHAT? PASSIVE INDEX "BETA"¹ AT A LOWER INITIAL PURCHASE PRICE THAN SPY

XDIV seeks investment results that, before fees and expenses, correspond to the performance of the Solactive Ex-Dividend Index so as to provide investors with returns that replicate the SPDR S&P 500 ETF (SPY), less the value of current and future expected dividends paid by S&P 500 companies over the term of the fund. Essentially, XDIV provides investors with only the price exposure of the S&P 500 by foregoing the dividends, which results in a reduced capital investment² at the time of initial purchase compared to buying straight index exposure. This is expected to provide returns that differ, possibly materially, from a similar investment in SPY. XDIV has an initial 10-year life and does not use leverage.

WHO? GROWTH-ORIENTED INVESTORS

Potentially for 1) Investors seeking long-term growth and/or 2) Those in the wealth accumulation phase of their lives.

WHY? GREATER INDEX EXPOSURE PER DOLLAR OF CAPITAL DEPLOYED THAN SPY

By forgoing the current value of expected dividends, investors are able to purchase SPY price exposure at a reduced capital investment. As shown in the performance below, this may create a different return profile than a traditional passive investment in the SPDR S&P 500 ETF. This structured return profile, called "structural alpha", gives investors the flexibility to:

- 1) Use less capital while maintaining the same allocation of passive Large Cap Blend exposure. This may allow them to redeploy the excess cash into other investments of their choice; or
- 2) Increase their exposure to Large Cap Blend while maintaining their preexisting amount of capital allocated to the style and leaving the rest of the portfolio unchanged.

Indexes are unmanaged and one cannot invest directly in an index. Past performance does not guarantee future results.

The shares are speculative securities and investing in them involves risk, including possible loss of principal. Other risk considerations are:

- There is no guarantee that a Fund will meet its investment objective.
- The Funds primarily invest in futures, which can be volatile. Even a small movement in market prices could cause large losses.
- Restrictions on redemptions may affect your ability to withdraw your participation in the Funds. Because the Funds have designated maturity dates, new investors may elect not to invest in a Fund as it nears maturity and existing investors may elect to sell their Shares or redeem through an Authorized Participant. As a result, the size of each Fund may decrease as it nears maturity and the impact of fund expenses could increase as a result.
- There is no guarantee that distributions will be made.

An active secondary market for the Fund shares may not exist. Although XDIV will be listed on an exchange, subject to notice of issuance, it is possible that an active trading market may not develop or be maintained.

Shares are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Funds other than in large Creation Unit aggregations. Instead, investors must buy or sell shares of a Fund in the secondary market with the assistance of a broker. As with all securities, buying and selling shares of Funds will result in brokerage commissions and will generate tax consequences. Brokerage commissions will reduce returns.

The Solactive U.S. Equity Ex-Dividends Index – Series 2027 (the “Ex-Dividends Index”, the “Index”) is an Index of Solactive AG and is calculated and distributed by Solactive AG. The Index aims to represent the current value of 0.25 shares of SPDR S&P 500 ETF (“SPY”), less the current value of ordinary cash dividends expected to be paid on the S&P 500 Index until the Fund’s maturity as represented by the Solactive U.S. Equity Cumulative Dividends Index - Series 2027 (the “Dividend Index”). The Dividend Index aims to represent the discounted present value of all listed annual S&P 500 Dividend Index Futures contracts (“S&P 500 Dividend Futures Contracts”) out to and including the December 2027 dividends futures expiry. The Index is a price only index. The Index is published in USD.
